HIS HONOR AND BIJAH

An Hour in the Central Station Court.

A SHADDER.

After remarking that harvest apples hadn't matured enough to be half ripe yet his Honor picked up the warrants and rodeled toward the corridor. The first one out was a match wasted female named Sophia Sullivan, and her face couldn't have looked more sorrowful had she lost fifteen cents and a coral ring.

"Mrs. Sullivan, you are charged with disturbing the peace," remarked the Court, "in the words, viz: to wit, as follows, you, as aforesaid, your husband, cut his scalp open with a plate, and reduced him to that point where he couldn't tell the difference between a Saratoga regatta and the new sorters baby."

"Well I did hit him Judge and I hit him pretty hard," she said.

"And your excuse?"

"Three years I've been a shadder on my life for the last five years," she went on.

"And the name of that shadder is which?"

"My husband. I hates me because I've got red hair and a turn up nose," she sobbed.

"Great shades! but is that so?"

"It is, your Honor. He comes home drunk, abuses me and I get desperate and fight back."

"Mrs. Sullivan, go home—go back to your aforesaid place. Your husband is a rhinoceros—a lunatic. Hite hair and a nose like that! The man ought to be boiled in tar. I'll get him down here some day and he'll think a horse barn fell upon him."

"AM!"

"Got an Injun for you," whispered Bijah as the next prisoner came out.

He was a deck hand on a propeller. Some one had injured his left eye. His proud spirit was down to zero and his out fit would have sold for twenty five cents at a second hand clothing store. Still he was an Indian, and as good looking an Indian as can be found on the plains.

"Is your name Okemos?" asked the Court.

No, sir, name of Sam," was the reply.

"Where is your lodge?"

"Down here ten rods."

"Where is your squaw?"

"Him run away two years ago."

"Where is your tribe?"

"Eh?"

"Where, sir, are the dignified, stoical and gallant red men of the forest who used to come up on the very spot where this station house now stands?"

"Him in Toledo, I guess," responded Sam.

"Child of the forest, native of the prairies, I feel sad for you," said the Court. He leaned back and shucked a peanut. "No lodge, no tribe—no chief—no war horse—no scalping. Where you played when a child you will now find oyster saloons and cold boots. White men are raising cabbages and each base truck on the hills where you used to hunt the wild roebuck. Where you once halted to listen to the whispers of the streamlet you will now hear the sounds of a John Chinaman chasing a woolen undershirt up and down a washboard. I don't want to strike an Injun after he is down. Go away, restless, broken spirit—get out of doors and try and be a better red man."

"Heap glad—old man heap good fellow," whispered the delighted Sam as he bent his back and shot under the rope.

A DRONE.

Erastus Washburne Harrison, the police say that you are a drone bee in the great hive of industry," said the Court to the next prisoner.

"I can prove my character," replied Erastus, sitting back on his dignity.

"I don't want any proof—proof sticks out all over you. See the whitewash on your back! Gazette that mend of hair which hasn't been ambled over with a comb since you can remember! Behold that scuffed hat—those old clothes—your general dilapidated look. It is no crime to be poor, Mr Harrison, but it is a crime for a poor man to be lazy!"

"I hain't lazy," replied the prisoner.

"Ah! Erastus, don't talk to me! I see no ambition in your eye—no resolution in your face—no dust around in your actions. You wouldn't crack a cocoanut for the sake of the milk and meat. Go to the cat, thou sluggard, consider her way and be wise."

"I haven't any cat," said Mr Harrison.

"Well, you've got to ante out of this, my humble friend. I'm going to make it sixty days."—Detroit Free Press.

Edinburgh and Her Monuments.

The gardens of Princes Street are dotted with statues, monuments and funeral people in bronze and marble. Here is the Hebrew prophet's valley of dry bones sprung into verdure and Corraan and the [illegible]. Through the ooze of a Scotch mist [illegible] Wilson, Allan Ramsay [illegible] reeking with wet and shrunken with cold. The monument to Scott is a crystallization of the Waverley Novels—an exquisite pile of Gothic arches, gue and oriel and statuary. The stone seems to babble and to babble and to wimple into a thousand delicate traceries. From another point of view it looks like the lopped off spire of a Catholic cathedral. It is a sad commentary that the gifted young artist who designed it fell into the canal one dark night and drowned. It is at once a monument to him and to Scott. Sir Walter lived in one of the streets that open out toward the beautiful waters of the Forth. Its number was 39, giving rise to the well known bon mot that this was the right number for him as it was fitting that the three graces and the nine muses should take up their residence there. It is further related that it was here that occurred the funny fiasco which is described in the Bride of Lammermoor, when Caleb excuses the non appearance of dinner by the story of a fall of soot down the chimney. Sir Walter had really gathered about him a numerous party to dinner, when a horrified servant rushed in and informed him that such a catastrophe had really happened. The party immediately adjourned to an inn and spent a delightful evening over their mishap. Edinburgh is crusted thick with gilding of this kind—the gilding of great men and great memories. Further up and as it were snuffing up the pleasant perfumes of the public gardens, over which it looks, stands the quaint house of Allan Ramsay, and in St Cuthbert's churchyard, mottled over with mausoleums and grave stones at the extreme end lie the ashes of the opium eater. It is the opium of death that he eats now, and the night of the grave covers the gorgeous child of delirium. What a pity that such a genius should have been so verdigrised and besmired with opium. From John Randolph to Henrich Heine, how many men have let themselves be overrun with this deadly ivy of voluptuousness—how many poor mites kick and contorse in this Venus web. With De Quincey it was the net in which he caught his draught of fishes—his rich laden ideas that sparkled and shimmered like phosphorus through the net.—Scribner's Magazine.

Chinese Proverbs about Women

The Chinese are a people of many proverbs, some of which are extremely acute and neatly turned. "He who finds pleasure in vice and pain in virtue is a novice in both," would be accepted by the wise of the most advanced countries as warranted by experience. But mark the proverbial philosophy of the Chinese with regard to women. "Listen to your wife but don't believe her." "To cultivate virtue is the science of men, to renounce science is the virtue of women." "The happiest mother of daughters is she who has sons only."

☞ The circulation of the TRIBUNE is double that of any paper published in Alameda county.

We should all have one Mother and vote the Republican ticket

Pass Chung Wates and Pass Party will poll quite a respectable vote in San Francisco

Upon this day rest not all Republicans work for the success of the State and County ticket

Place all on the editorial column, has also not left in which the name of Haleiger is mentioned. It will be much for the health of that good man, Uncle Phil Sing

Dennis policy of giving the papers his editorial power has been frequently shown in short stop the amendments to the Code. Mr. Stetson, the Lazarus Fair Wood, have been amplified and the papers are now filled in the premises

For some of the Democrats kneeling together in duty as the republican in favor of the Republican party. They promise fully sacrifice as we to be kept out of the office forever. They hanging after the office and unceremoniously unhappy at the slight prospect of obtaining them

We do think among the candidates current Five cents municipal post it will be a Democrat or we should into of Oakland one for Mayor and the other for City Engineer. We question that Republicans nominating conventions which propose the leaders for our citizens we are sure of their local habitations. We do not be wasty stand every high

A [illegible] by the proceedings of the City Council look on sting, the sing of the Damage to solution to the use of all water for sprinkling the streets have been responded to by the City Council in a way that bids fair to give the order a positional test. The order authorized to advertise for sealed proposals for the construction of a tank to hold 50,000 gallons. It is proposed to use the tank at the foot of Webster st which will be convenient for a large portion of the city

Fire Bells Ant. We learn from the Bulletin that the rumor that Fire Bells, a gentleman of power and influence among the high men of gentlemen, he will be called upon to come in the Orange colored livery of the Nation is true. Fire Bells Phoenix are and bid fair and will assume power Frank Engs exercising sway. The revolution in popular sentiment in favor of Little was caused by the extremely able editorials which have lately appeared in the afternoon and morning. We school Republicans need be disinterested at this and never be slow organization, and perhaps Little may be defeated after all despite the powerful influence wielded against him

Mr. Little has been heard from Not at his office because an office drawer of his desk which he receives for doing nothing but in the Year office who is probably wont to pay his assessment a position of the aforesaid money. If this institution the "Sacramento" is to be believed and it is not usually. Mr. Little says that he will come to Alameda county ahead of both Hayes and Fairchild. Mr. Little is a visionary individual and, at times talks in such strange hallucinations. It will in consequence [illegible] before they can forgive them for all they and give the lie to the Democrats when they assert that the war was a failure and did they not [illegible] the Democrats gated by their [illegible] How this hatred originated in the Rebellion and the little Pod. Even to day at the South as against the Confederate soldier, the Union soldier who may have turned Democrat, has no possible show to ob [illegible] and by the way any Union soldier who could become a Democrat ought not to hold office. At the North, the man who proved true was by every means in their power and the only so applied but untold treasures of the Democratic party. It is not surprising that the Union can be induced into voting the Democratic ticket. If voting is which they must know that the Republican principles are infinitely superior to those connected by the Democratic party

The banks of this city have made an application to have their assessments reduced to a nominal sum, and the Board of Equalization have the same under consideration. The law says that solvent debts secured by mortgage must be taxed, and it makes no exception in the case of banks. The members of the Board of Equalization are sworn to carry out the law as they find it and not as they would like to have it. If any injustice be done, it is to the facts of the law and not the Board of Equalization. To exempt the banks from state assessments and compel individuals to pay on the same class of property would be showing partiality that would be as unjust and wrong as it would be unconstitutional. There is no authority found either in the law books or the decisions of courts for the granting of the application referred to, and all the arguments of attorneys and others intended not either appeals to the personal feelings of the members of the Board rather than to their reason. With their oath of office, and the law staring them in the face, we cannot see how any member of the Board of Equalization could vote to grant the application. The question of the justice of the law taxing mortgages, as demonstrated by its practical workings, ought not to enter into the case. It is clearly a matter of well defined duty.

STILL LOYAL.

Last night Phil. Sheridan received an ovation. The Post opposed it; the Examiner called him a red-handed murderer, and yet the people of San Francisco turned out by thousands to welcome the hero of Winchester. As we heard the cheers from thousands of throats, and the booming of cannon, we could but think how little influence the Post and Examiner have. Both of these papers are edited by Democrats, and we never knew Democrats to love Union soldiers. Did you, reader, ever know the Democracy to love a Union soldier, to love a man who helped to put down the rebellion, to love a man who believed that the Union should not be dissolved, in short, to love any man who was loyal to the flag under which he lived, and was protected.

The editor of the Post is an alien born in a foreign land, he cannot conceive how Americans can love Phil Sheridan as they do. Having attained a position in this country much higher than he could have attained in his own, and really much higher than his abilities warrant, he now pessimises on it and abuses the gallant Phil Sheridan.

The article in the Examiner was in verse written by Lilot Roach who was born on a beautiful island upon the other side of the wide Atlantic. An island famous in story and in song—an island which has given to the world more than its share of genius and greatness—an island that has been prolific in statesmen, warriors and poets—an island whose brave and generous sons have fought successfully all battles but their own. No, No. No editor of the Emerald Isle, could refuse to pay homage to the gallantry of Phil Sheridan. No the article in the Examiner must have been written by some savage in America than whom no more contemptible wretch exists on this earth.

We repeat, Democrats do not love Union soldiers. But the thousands who assembled to meet him on his arrival at San Francisco, proved that California is still loyal still true to the old flag still determined to sustain the Government.

Will man who served in the late war, and on the Union side, countenance a party which never put a Federal soldier in nomination for any office, but, on the contrary always places a Rebel soldier in nomination when they can find one, will, we repeat, man who fought for the Union, aid by their votes a party which sought by every means possible to dissolve it. A party which by its damnable treason, caused the death of hundreds of thousands of gallant men. Peace to the ashes of these brave soldiers who died for their country. May the turf lay lightly on their breast, and the willows weep over their grave be as perpetual as their memories.

IMMIGRATION

The continued decrease in immigration results the facts that there is, under the laws of this country a class of advantages for the hard-working people of Europe which has not hitherto been placed before them with sufficient prominence. The laws of debtor and creditor have been the ruin of many honest men in England. Volumes of light literature have made familiar to most readers the cruelties and injustice that used to be perpetrated in the old debtor prisons. Long after those prisons were nominally abolished, a system only a little less impolitic was retained. A writ or summons having been served upon a debtor, the creditor could, after eight days if no return were made, forthwith arrest him, and detain him in prison until the debt was satisfied.

In some measure, so far as facility of arrest is concerned this system has necessarily been amended. But while lawyers and law makers and others in England tell us that the barbarous custom of imprisonment for debt has been finally abolished, it is none the less true that last year no less than 4,000 persons in England were imprisoned for debt. It is done under a legal quibble, but that is no comfort to the poor debtor.

Our own system is not perfect, but it is at least more just and merciful than that. If it allows some fraudulent acts to be committed with impunity, it does not bring ruin upon every man whom misfortune or any other circumstance has placed in the position of debtor. The English law is the more unjust because it affects chiefly small debtors and therefore falls most heavily on poor people. No man in this country, however unfortunate, if he simply is honest, need be ruined. However heavy his debts, the law allows him the means to make a fresh start. He is never stripped of every thing, and, with his family, turned adrift and imprisoned as in England merely for being poor. To a man who is fighting his way up in the world this is no small advantage, and if these exemptions of the several States were made widely known among the working population of Great Britain, they would, we think, induce many more poor men to come to this country.

In the resignation of Mr. Mason, Oakland has lost one of the most faithful and capable officers that has ever served in this City as councils. Mr. Mason was elected in the Spring of 1874, and no man has done more than he to have the affairs of the city in every department conducted upon principles of the closest economy. The position was forced upon him he did not desire it, but, on the contrary, several times refused to allow his name to be used in connection with the office, and it was only upon the earnest solicitation of several prominent citizens that he finally reluctantly consented. The TRIBUNE rejoices in the fact that it supported Mr Mason from the first even before he was nominated, in referring to his candidacy we said "he is a business man whose experience "in public affairs pre-eminently qualifies "him for the position, and he is sure to "be one of the most useful members." His record during the brief period of his Councilship has fully demonstrated the correctness of our opinions of the gentleman. Every good citizen will regret the step which Mr. Mason has been compelled to take. We understand that he will shortly remove to Carson City (Nev.), where he will again enter into mercantile pursuits.

The watch-fires of the Republican party are burning brightly in the interior. Here, in Alameda county, the political prospects are brightening, and the omens indicate that we will carry the county by a large majority over both Democrats and Independents. The Republicans are thoroughly aroused, and many of those who have been known, heretofore, as Independents, are returning to their first love the Republican party.

SANTA BARBARA, August 23.—In Mrs Morton's case, the jury came into Court at half past six this evening, with a verdict of murder in the first degree, fixing the penalty at confinement in the State Prison for life. Counsel for the defendant gave notice of a motion for a new trial. The Judge fixed Thursday, the 26th inst., for sentence.

HAIR WORK.—Ladies who left orders for hair work with Miss Gradock, at her old stand, will please call and get them at Room No. 12, Central Block, over Schroeder's furniture store.

SOME REFLECTIONS

As the Republican party has adopted the Independent's position, there is now no issue on the railroad question. There is nothing then but dislike of leaders in the old party that can keep honest Independents from returning to the ranks, and we are glad to know that they are doing so every day. The Independent papers say that there are no National issues involved in this campaign, and we would infer that they attached no importance to State issues and are running the party on cheap water and cheap gas exclusively. Who ever before knew of a party with such a narrow platform? What do the people of the interior care whether San Francisco has cheap water and cheap gas, or not? This is a matter of interest only to the residents of that city. How intelligent men expect that the Independent party can poll much of a vote outside of San Francisco, with such a platform we cannot understand.

Republicans should divest themselves of all personal, petty feelings, and labor for the best interests of the country. We have a thorough contempt for any man who leaves the party simply because such men as Sargent and Gorham are said to have manipulated the Republican Convention. No man or set of men could make us leave a political organization which we believed necessary for the good government of the Union. Could any more humiliating spectacle be imagined than men leaving the party which they profess to love in order to gratify a feeling of spite and hatred against some prominent member of it. It is high time that the narrow, illiberal, egotistical, little men of the party should cease their grumbling, and fault-finding at men who are naturally leaders in the Republican party, as they would be in any organization to which they might attach themselves.

Building and Loan

ASSOCIATION

Of Alameda County, Oakland, Cal.

Incorporated, July 21st, 1875

Capital Stock, $250,000.

Divided into

1,250 Shares of $200 Each

OFFICERS:

[illegible]

OBJECTS.

The objects of this Association are to raise funds in shares not to exceed $200 each payable in periodical installments and to make loans to its members for the purpose of aiding them in acquiring or improving real estate.

ADVANTAGES.

This Association offers better inducements to shareholders than any other corporation of the kind on this coast.

No shareholder can own more than 20 shares and each shareholder can have but one vote.

No money loaned outside of the membership of the Association and for no other purpose than acquiring or improving homesteads.

No shareholder is entitled to a cash loan than his shares represent at $200 per share.

Each borrower gets a rebatement of interest every twelve months.

Payments for stock are made in instalments of 50 cents for each share on the second and fourth Mondays of each month; fines and forfeitures being provided by the rules for failure in such payments.

Interest in all cases 7 3-10 per cent per annum being 2 cents per day on a $100 loan, and only 20 cents per day on a $1,000 loan; enabling every shareholder to be his own landlord and in a few years own his own home with less average monthly outlay than his ordinary rent.

The shareholders elect their own Treasurer Secretary and Attorney, besides the Trustees.

Meetings of Trustees open to all shareholders and all loans made in open meeting to the highest bidder.

No snap judgment foreclosures; ample provisions being made for death, sickness, or other inability.

No officers except Attorney and Secretary receive fees from the Association and the Association has no rent to pay, hence expenses are comparatively insignificant, and all the profits go to the shareholders.

A large part of the stock is already subscribed and within two weeks it is expected the entire stock will be taken and almost immediately thereafter bring a premium.

☞ Subscription books at the drug store of W. D. Conard, corner of 12th street and 14th avenue, Brooklyn, and at the office of the Association at all hours of the day.

Virginians as Seen by an Englishman

The Virginians, as a people, are, at all events, outwardly—not that I have the slightest grounds for supposing that it is only thus—decidedly religious. You seldom hear them swear, and as I have already said they never drink, they even look on dancing for the most part with horror, and in most communities also on gaming, to which as well as to betting Lenten observance. In these they are outwardly most Americans, in fact of I may continue to say they in common with the majority of the middle portion of the United States seem to have entirely lost all taste in that respect, and shade black with a degree of [illegible] which does not always remain the last satisfies the highest public demands.
